Summary of Experiences

Dr. T. Field has been an author, consultant, educator, and vocational expert within the public and private rehabilitation sectors since joining the faculty at the University of Georgia in 1972. As an academic advisor and major professor at UGA, more than 75 masters candidates and 19 doctoral candidates graduated with degrees in counseling and rehabilitation. Dr. Field was a vocational expert and advisor to the social security program and to both plaintiff and defense attorneys in personal injury litigation. Over the last 15 years, Dr. Field has conducted over 350 seminars to rehabilitation professionals on the topics of job analysis, transferable work skills, loss of employability, and lost earning capacity. In recent years, Dr. Field has concentrated on authoring books and developing related resources (journals, study guides, etc.) through printing and publishing for professionals in the rehabilitation industry. Dr. Field is a frequent contributor of articles to the professional journals in rehabilitation. In terms of presentations, Dr. Field has presented annually at state, regional and national conferences for over 30 years.

In 1986, Elliott & Fitzpatrick, Inc. purchased a local printing company, which became the publishing arm of E & F. Today, E & F enjoys a respected national reputation as a publisher of rehabilitation journals, texts, and other resource manuals, and the developer of one of the more successful software programs (Labor Market Access) in the field of jobs and rehabilitation. In his capacity as president of E & F, Dr. Field continues to write, conduct seminars, serve as both editor and publisher of several rehabilitation resources, and serve as a consultant to other rehabilitation professionals, as well as a frequent speaker to professional groups and organizations, including annual presentations at the IARP National and Forensic conferences.
